

Your City Your Parks Your Future

2023 Impact Report

Friends,

San Francisco's celebrated parks are a result of significant investments and advocacy spanning decades. However, San Francisco is facing extraordinary budget reductions. Historically, City Hall has deprioritized services seen as "luxuries" like parks, playgrounds, and public spaces in times like these.

We believe that your parks are an essential service benefiting all residents. Advocacy, education, and funding are needed to protect and improve them.

To meet these challenges, SF Parks Alliance is reorganizing. We created two new affiliate organizations, SF Parks Foundation and SF Parks Forward, to ensure your parks and public spaces receive the investment they need to thrive. The change will also improve our efficiency, transparency, and efficacy.

As the City's needs change, we are adapting to ensure SF parks and public spaces are safe, beautiful, and vibrant.

Against this backdrop, our work isn't slowing down—it's ramping up. We welcomed a record number of attendees to our free outdoor movies and concerts, broke ground on one of San Francisco's largest park projects to date, and made possible the work of visionary community members who are making change in our collective backyard.

You make this all possible.

With gratitude,

Drew Becher
Chief Executive Officer

Moss Street

SF Parks Alliance received funding for Moss Street in 2020. Over the last three years, we collaborated with neighbors to make the corridor a safe and welcoming habitat for local plants, animals, and humans. The first phase of improvements, completed in January 2023, included two murals, string lighting, rain cisterns, planters, and signage recognizing the space's origins as a tidal wetland.

“I have so enjoyed the marked improvements in our city parks over the last 10–15 years! Thank you and keep up the excellent work.”

Paint Party on Page Slow Street

Page Slow Street hosted a Paint Party to celebrate its official adoption into the SFMTA's Slow Streets Program. Volunteers gathered on a sunny day to paint fairy doors and community signs donated by Slow Lake Street. The event attracted cyclists enjoying nearby Golden Gate Park, who stopped to join the party. In October, the group unveiled the Slow Street Parklet, a public mini park which includes seating, a Little Free Library, and a fairy garden.

January

Heart Your Parks

For our spring fundraiser, SF Parks Alliance hosted the first “Heart Your Parks” popup screen printing event, stationing mobile screen printers at four different parks on four different weekends. Each location offered a new design specific to the park by local artist Orlie K. While hanging out in the park is never a bad use of time, we played bingo and did yoga exercises with folks in line. We gave away an estimated 4,700 prints and raised over $30,000 through donations and memberships!

“This felt so San Francisco! Local art, community joy, and beautiful parks.”

Muriel Leff Mini Park

In February 2023, Muriel Leff Mini Park was under construction as Parks Alliance completed the build of a nature play area, boulders, dry creek bed, and picnic tables. In March, local residents beautified the Inner Richmond park at a community planting day. The park's transformation was celebrated with a community ribbon cutting in April, which launched Jazz Thursdays, a concert series held through the spring and summer.

“Keeping our parks in good condition helps keep our generation and the future ones appreciative of its beauty!”

Bernal Cut Beautification Group

The Bernal Cut Beautification Group, with funding from a Community Challenge Grant, worked alongside neighbors of Cuvier Commons to clean part of the Bernal Cut Path previously used as a dumping ground. This newly restored space has a dog run and a mural showcasing Bernal Heights by local artist Amos Goldbaum.

April

“I left inspired and full of ideas and some new connections.”

SUMMIT ATTENDEE

Public Space Summit

This annual conference connects community members who want better public spaces with civic leaders who have successfully created them. Over 300 attendees gathered at the Southeast Community Center in Bayview for the 2023 Public Space Summit. Attendees had the option to tour the Blue Greenway by bike, learn about the mechanics behind installing public art, and plan their storytelling strategy. The event ended with a mini award ceremony and reception in the garden amphitheater.

TRADICIÓN PERUANA CULTURAL CENTER

Action Awards

In partnership with the SF Office of Economic & Workforce Development, SF Parks Alliance distributed ten $5,000 grants to community groups that bring free, recurring community events to San Francisco public spaces. In addition to funding, we provided technical expertise to support grantees in navigating administration and permitting requirements—experience we’ve built over years of planning free outdoor events. Meet the grantees!

MusicTechSF

MusicTechSF hosted monthly beat making, songwriting, and gardening workshops for the greater Excelsior community. Attendees were invited to explore the garden at June Jordan School for Equity and share love for plants, culture, music, and social justice.

Fierce Fat Femme

The Fierce Fat Flea is a clothing and goods market dedicated to the plus size shopper. The group will host three pop-up markets in 2024.

Tradición Peruana Cultural Center

Tradición Peruana Cultural Center brought four consecutive weeks of Afro-Peruvian music and dance workshops to Excelsior Park. Workshop participants were provided with traditional dance attire and instruments to bring the performances to life.

ASL Love

ASL Love is bridging linguistic and cultural gaps between sign language users and the public through a series of arts and culture events. They’ve hosted numerous ASL meetups in Dolores Park and also hosted a Deaf Queer Drag Show.

THE YOUVERSE PROJECT

The YouVerse Project

The YouVerse Bus—a mobile self discovery classroom that brings programming to kids in the Hunters Point neighborhood—used the grant to put on a series of mindfulness and healthy eating workshops for families.

CREATE

Create Skateboards organized an outdoor professional skateboard demonstration and contest called CREATE Fest along Jessie Street in SoMA. They partnered with another local business, Bloom Room, to construct the skate obstacles and ramps.

Marty's Place Affordable Housing Cooperative

Marty's Place is a housing co-op for low income people living with HIV/AIDS. The co-op will host a series of movie nights at their community center to celebrate the neighborhood and the positive impact of this social housing model.

Reclaiming SF

Reclaiming SF elevates all that is beautiful and vibrant about Black San Francisco and invites people to gather, create, and reflect about spatial justice. The opening of Reclaiming SF was held at the Faight, and the interactive installation will come to more public spaces in the coming months.

YOUTH ART EXCHANGE (YAX)

Youth Art Exchange (YAX)

Youth Art Exchange, a nonprofit that brings arts education to young people in SF, opened a new brick and mortar in the Mission this year. This grant helped them bring art workshops and live dance performances to their community open house. More visual arts family workshops will be offered at their studio in the coming months to increase pedestrian and community activity on the block.

Other Avenues Grocery Cooperative

Other Avenues is a grocery co-op that brought a series of energizing events to the Outer Sunset community including bike rides, beach clean ups, outdoor yoga, and cooking workshops, all of which fostered connection among residents and a celebration of their public spaces.

May

Friends of Peru Avenue Stairway

In September of 2018, Mission Terrace and Excelsior neighbors formed The Friends of Peru Avenue Stairway. Over five years, the group led clean ups, landscaped, lobbied the city to remove 12 diseased and dying trees, and won a Community Challenge Grant. In June 2023, they completed the transformation of the stairway and surrounding area into a beautiful space by and for the community.

June

Sutro Stewards

Sutro Stewards works to conserve and expand the wildlife habitat and trail system on Mount Sutro, allowing the community to enjoy the incredible biodiversity, vistas, and peace that Mount Sutro Open Space Reserve has to offer. In 2023, they established a new habitat restoration site, the Quarry Trail Connection, and planted 1,000 plants at this site and the Southridge Mugwort site with the help of volunteers, staff and apprentices, and their Health in Nature GROWTH program. The Quarry Trail Connection links habitats from Clarendon Boulevard to the summit of Mount Sutro for biodiversity and ecosystem resilience. Sutro Stewards has been awarded another Community Challenge Grant for restoration of Woodland Canyon Creek in 2023.

June

Sundown Cinema

Sundown Cinema is one of many free programs SF Parks Alliance offers in parks to connect people with their neighbors and friends, building a sense of community and stronger social bonds. For the fifth season of Sundown Cinema, SF Parks Alliance hosted eight movies at eight parks across the city.

Let'sPlaySF!

Herz Playground in San Francisco's Visitacion Valley is the tenth playground SF Parks Alliance renovated as part of the Let'sPlaySF! initiative in collaboration with the SF Recreation & Parks Department. On August 24, we celebrated this $3.38 million makeover at a ribbon cutting with city leaders, refreshments, and delighted children. The renovation includes two play areas, new paths, benches, picnic tables, a drinking fountain, and more. Up next for the Let'sPlaySF! campaign is the completion of Richmond and Buchanan Street Mall playgrounds.

Party for the Parks

Party for the Parks is the premier social event that supports San Francisco parks and public spaces. On Saturday, September 23, park lovers bought tickets to feast, dance, and sip on specialty cocktails at The Conservatory at One Sansome. Each year's party includes a new theme, and guests are encouraged to dress to it, creating a vision where attendees are a part of the unique decor. This year featured a greenhouse theme.

Kite the Bay

In collaboration with California State Parks and Parks California, SF Parks Alliance hosted the first ever Kite the Bay, a family-friendly kite festival at Candlestick Point, on October 21. Visitors brought and borrowed kites to dot the sky with color. Live music, food, and face painting rounded out the event, which was part of a community-centered approach to strengthening relationships between the park and the surrounding neighborhood.

“This was such a unique and heartfelt event. I loved seeing Candlestick Point so full of life and color.”

Help McLaren Park

Help McLaren Park, which aims to attract park users through beautification, restoration, repair, and safety, hosted a concert with over 300 attendees on October 14 featuring tribute bands Gods of Thunder and Unchained in collaboration with Friends of the Jerry Garcia Amphitheater. The group also collaborated with San Francisco artist Hudson Lanier, who installed 350 ceramic fish on the Louis Sutter Roundhouse in McLaren Park in the spring.

October

Friends of Lakeside Village

Friends of Lakeside Village (FOLV) installed new and repaired existing lighting on Ocean Avenue, a major benefit to businesses and visitors. FOLV continues to implement various weekly events for families, including yoga, live music, art fairs, and gardening classes. The group is also responsible for sidewalk beautification to help maintain the corridor.

October

Far Out West Community Garden

Far Out West Community Garden hosted an outdoor film series featuring documentaries about local arts and culture, environmental protection, and social justice. They collaborated with local organizations on these events, including Citizen Film, The Two-Eighty Project, and Surfrider San Francisco.

October

Community Innovation Lab at India Basin Waterfront Park

The India Basin Shoreline Park project will develop three spaces—700 Innes, 900 Innes, and India Basin Shoreline Park—into 1.7 miles of winding shoreline trails, a new playground, amphitheater, and more. The India Basin Project will transform the space with an emphasis on public access, social equity, resiliency, and restoration.

SF Parks Alliance supported the Community Innovation Lab (The Lab) installation, a repurposed shipping container that includes seating, outdoor bean bags, a lending library, electricity, free wi-fi, and games. While the park is under construction, The Lab serves as a place to build community and pilot free programming that will be a regular feature of the completed park.

The Lab is part of a larger Equitable Development Plan to ensure that the park is being built with, for, and by the surrounding neighborhood.

The park is expected to open to the public summer 2026.

October

Ledyard Alley

Ledyard Alley in Bayview is an important thoroughway for pedestrians to access the Silver Terrace Recreation Area. Despite its usage, the alleyway struggles with weeds, trash dumping, and poor lighting. In partnership with SF Parks Alliance, Friends of Silver Terrace Forever are transforming the alleyway into a safe and inviting space. On October 14, the Silver Terrace community cleaned, greened, and weeded the alley. Permanent improvements in this space, made possible by a Community Challenge Grant, will include new lighting, planters, and a mural.

November

Tunnel Top Park

Tunnel Top Park was transformed from an informal dumping ground into a community-serving open space surrounded by habitat gardens. Residents of the Potrero-Dogpatch Neighborhood made landscaping improvements, constructed a dog run, and added lighting to the park in 2023. In addition, the group ran a robust internship program with the local city college to cultivate future leaders of public spaces.

November

Chess at UN Plaza

In partnership with SF Recreation & Parks and the Mechanics Institute, SF Parks Alliance launched Chess at UN Plaza, a recurring Sunday event that brought chess sets, tables, and chairs to the public. To make the famously complicated game more accessible, the Mechanics Institute provided skilled chess instructors for everyone from novices to lifelong players. The program launched alongside other changes at UN Plaza, including a skatepark and ping pong tables, that are meant to make the space more welcoming.

November

Slow Street Sidewalk Gardens

Between December 2022 and December 2023, SF Parks Alliance in partnership with Friends of the Urban Forest, installed 30 sidewalk gardens along the following Slow Streets: Page Street, Golden Gate Avenue, and Lyon Street. Neighbors along these streets applied to have these sidewalk gardens installed, attended community meetings to advise the selection and installation, and assisted with planting. Across all three projects, over 70 volunteers came out to green these newly permanent slow streets.

“Every bit of green on the sidewalk makes a difference in making the street feel more welcoming and beautiful.”

JULIAN COPE

Visitation Valley Greenway

Visitation Valley Greenway GOAL (Growing Outdoors and Learning) maintains five of the six greenway gardens in Visitation Valley and the McLaren Natural Plant Garden. Co-Founders Fran Martin and Jim Growden have stewarded this site since 1993. Jim has designed various components of the walkways, from their sculptured gates to signage. In 2023, he designed tile murals on the columns near the entrance which were installed by local tiler Dan O'Brien. These columns are just one example of the public art available alongside the walkway.

December

Entwined

In partnership with artist Charles Gadeken, SF Parks Alliance brought holiday favorite Entwined back for its fourth year in Golden Gate Park. This season, the centerpiece was the “Elder Mother,” a weeping willow that invited parkgoers to revel under her branches. Interactive elements, like audio stories and light customization, and ongoing programming, like story readings and craft nights, made it one of the most dazzling seasons yet.

“My family stumbled upon this installation after dinner one night, and we were all blown away by the magic and beauty it brought to the park.”
